MAKING AMENDS

When describing step nine in the big book it says that "if we are painstaking about this phase of our development we will be amazed before we are half way through", and then it goes on to list the promises. The information in the 12X12 is a lot more direct about the different approaches we could take and tries to encourage us to exercise caution before we rush in and make some major blunders. This suggestion, I think, can't be taken lightly. I have heard many horror stories about well meaning people, wanting to put this step behind them, ran to their friends and loved ones and disclosed things that destroyed any trust they may have had in the alcoholic.

Good judgment, a careful sense of timing, courage, and prudence---these are the qualities we shall need when we take Step Nine. Sometimes we read the headline but fail to read the entire article. If we do this when we go through the steps we can do more damage to our already strained relationships. Making promises, to my close friends and family, that I'm not sure I can keep, usually fall on deaf ears, but an honest recognition of my past mistakes, without going into too many details, at this time, and a sincere determination to give the program my best effort with the understanding that my behavior will be the measure of my success, is a more acceptable approach. We know that the road to hell is paved with good intentions. After we have put some time between us and our last debacles, we can revisit those amends and go into details about each event, only after we have run it by an experienced and trusted advisor.

Rushing into an amend that could bring hardship to our unsuspecting family, or to other third parties, is another mistake that people sometimes make. In Step Nine in the 12X12 it says that "WE cannot, for example, unload a detailed account of extramarital adventuring upon the shoulders of our unsuspecting wife or husband". I would also include Major financial or work related amends that may result in losing your job, or create heavy financial difficulties for the family. These should be put off until everyone involved is in agreement, and then, only after talking to someone to make sure that you are not overlooking anything.

How about all those relatives and friends that we haven't seen in awhile, but still have an uncomfortable feeling about the way we left that relationship? These people only have a snapshot of what we used to be like. They don't see the day to day changes that we have made in our lives and they assume that we are the same as when we made our last major mistake. For this type of situations, I would consider a slow but sincere process of reestablishing contact with those involved. I once suggested that, using the opportunity on Birthdays and Holidays, of sending cards can be a nice way to reestablish contact with these people, with a simple "been thinking about you, hope things are going well for you, Love....." Sending these out at each opportunity for a year or two with no return address, and no expectations, and at some time in the future, you will have to attend a wedding, graduation, or funeral... where you will see them again, and you will be amazed at what will happen. My experience has been that the cards create curiosity and that sometimes causes these people to talk to each other and they find out that you are trying hard to mend your ways and it tends to disarm them. Now, that would be the time to put these things to rest. Keeping in mind that, if I can't add the kicker "I regret what I did, and I don't do that anymore" then maybe I'm not ready to make that amend yet.

I hope these ideas will help you to understand, that most amends can be made in a positive way and the results are so much better than we ever could have expected. We must do these things if we hope to experience the promises listed on pages 83/84 in the Big Book. (INTO ACTION) By Rick R.

"Make direct amends to such people wherever possible, except when to do so would injure them or others."

No Choice in the Matter of Drink

I had no solution for my alcoholic malady before coming to AA, because I didn't understand the nature of my problem. I had always considered that my problem was the first drink -- that was wrong! My problem has never been the first drink because it was then too late. My problem started long before! My problem started with savoring the next shot of whisky, or perhaps a snifter of Courvoisier (if I was in the chips). Said consideration invoked a powerful yes or no debating society severely affecting my alcoholic-decision-making-apparatus; you can easily guess which side was awarded the laurel wreath!

Thus, the decision became surreptitiously embedded in my mind. I sometimes would push it down till the weekend because one drink often meant missing work the next day. Nevertheless, sometimes quickly, sometimes slowly, my fate was sealed, I was bound to drink soon because there existed no choice in the matter of drink. This was John Barleycorn's cunning, powerful and patient obsession process: contemplation – debate – decision – first drink, followed by the phenomenon of craving with all the predictably disastrous consequences. I was just as powerless before I took a drink as after I was afterward. This must be what they mean by the phrase: "Hopeless and helpless!"

But at six months sober, a wonderful new sponsor taught me how to develop a spiritual experience as the result of living AAs Twelve Steps. This exciting inner transformation eventually freed me from the necessity of debating whether to drink or not to drink. Page 85 tells us that "the problem has been removed. It does not exist for us." I no longer have need to "think the drink through" as was the case in early recovery because God has rewarded me with the same joyous release as had Bill Wilson and Bill Dotson (p. 191). I am no longer incarcerated in the devil's prison of the mental obsession because "if I should drink" has been removed from my emotional vocabulary. Thank you, God!

Bob S.

SOME HUMOR.....

During a recent discussion about anonymity and the Internet this comment was made: "I hope they never change Step Five to read: 'Admitted to God, to ourselves, and to social networks the exact nature of our wrongs.'"

NO EXIT!

AA is like the mob. If you leave, you're dead!

- .....
- My tools for building a new sober individual:
- Steps One through Five—Under Construction: Avoid enclosed spaces and relationships. Engage in service work, wear a hard hat to avoid falling objects and objectives.
- Steps Six through Nine—A work in progress: Visible transformation taking place, start to carpool and discuss plans, evidence of previous structure fades away.
- Steps Ten through Twelve—Under new management: Able to take orders from above, ready for future use.
