Step Three Need Not be Difficult
Abandon Our Failed Ego Driven Insanity

I don't believe that any two people in the A.A. program have settled into a concept of a higher power that are identical in every respect. Alcoholics have been off the grid for such a time that their concept of everything must be recalibrated into some form of strategy that they can work with whether or not, anybody else understands the linguistics they use to describe it. The taking of Step Three is deciding to abandon our failed Ego driven insanity and to find another source of principles and behaviors to replace them. Some of us return to the Religion of our choice while others may struggle with that idea and settle for an approach that is more practical in nature. We in Alcoholics Anonymous see examples of success in a variety of different approaches when it comes to turning our will and our lives over to a power greater than ourselves. If this wasn't that way, where would the Agnostic and Atheist go to get relief from this terrible disease? I get an uncomfortable feeling at a meeting when it starts going overly religious and I see a new member squirming in his seat. I was the one described in step two in the 12x12 that had "tried Religion and found it wanting." Had I not read that line in the 12x12 I may not have stayed with the program. Having the option to come to terms with this issue has opened the gate to a path which has worked for me. On page 34 in the 12x12 Where it says "This is the way to a Faith that works" and when I simply combined that line with the line on page 27 in the 12x12 which says, "You can, if you wish, make A.A. itself your higher power." When I addressed it in that way, I had no problem moving on with the rest of the steps of the program. I am not driven away by anything that I've read in The Big Book or the 12x12. I have never wanted a drink since I entered the program and the only answer, I could come up with, was the influence of A.A in my life. For a guy who couldn't conceive of a day without alcohol, to a guy that has never wanted a drink since, was all I needed to know about God. I wish I could tell you who or what God is, but I can't. I have researched things that I have heard concerning how the A.A. program came to be what it is today and the thing that had the most influence on me concerning this issue was the book, "The Sermon on the Mount" by Emmet Fox which highly influenced the founders of the A.A. Program as to how to address the spiritual aspects and how to apply them. The Grapevine article of Feb. 1996 "Emmet Fox and Alcoholics Anonymous" explains these things. I have read that book upwards if ten times and it defines and reinforces all the principles that we learn in the A.A. program. When I pray, I simply ask God for his guidance and for the strength to carry what comes to me as the answer that I seek. When I do it in that way, I become a better listener and the answers do come to me eventually. I believe that I practice principles that are consistent with Christian teaching as well as any Christian I know but I don't consider myself a Christian as I find these principles in most historical philosophies. I've studied Plato, Socrates and Aristotle, who came three hundred fifty years before Christ and they are not unlike the values of most religions. As the result of all my Studies, I have settled into a way of life based on unselfish principals and values that govern all my motives and actions and it has led to a life of meaningful purpose and a peace of mind that I never thought possible.

PRIEST WITH A SECRET

After a few months sober, he knew it was time to tell the group how different he was. Would they let him stay? It was January 2005 and I had just returned from an alcohol rehab facility for priests in Rochester, Minnesota. I had spent the three months there working through the issues surrounding my alcohol addiction. All those being discharged were encouraged to find AA meetings in their areas to begin this "new life" of recovery.

So I went online and located the page for the A.A. Inter-group for Miami-Dade, where I was living at the time. There were plenty of meetings in area but I was seeking a special kind of meeting, the ones with the "G" next to the meeting description, for gay. I located the meeting schedule for a place called Lambda/Dade, which was not far from the university where I was living and working.

At my first meeting there, I was warmly welcomed when I came in and was recognized as being new to the group. I introduced myself by saying my name was Warren, "and I'm an alcoholic." But it would take months to let people know me fully.

One night I went to a meeting and the scheduled speaker failed to show up. The secretary of the group approached me and asked if I would be willing to share my story. In that instant, every conceivable excuse I could come up with to say no flashed through my mind yet somehow I heard my mouth say, "OK."

I sat in the chair in the front of the room. Everyone quieted down. I took a deep breath and I said something that I had never said publicly before. "Hello, my name is Warren," I told the group. "I'm an alcoholic. I'm also gay and a Catholic priest."

Much to my surprise, the ceiling did not collapse, the walls did not cave in, the crowd did not rush at me to stone me and cast me out into the night. Everyone calmly replied, "Hi, Warren."

Tradition 3: "Real, RECOVERED, Grateful

Drawing a big circle with love and wit

One evening, as a newcomer, I was sitting next to my sponsor in an AA meeting when a man introduced himself as "an alcoholic and an addict." My sponsor leaned over to me and whispered, "In Alcoholics Anonymous, you don't get any extra points for that."

For me, the statement, "I am an alcoholic" is the great leveler, the primary point of identification, and the fulcrum of unity for our entire Fellowship. But just because I introduce myself as an alcoholic doesn't mean that everyone else has to fall lockstep on my schedule. I have seen AA members become agitated and rude when newcomers don't introduce themselves "correctly." But yelling at people just chases them out the door. Kindness and concern can temper conversations about identification and unity.

No one, other than ourselves, can decide if we are AA members or not. The judge doesn't decide; the probation officer doesn't decide; the counselor doesn't decide; the sponsor doesn't decide; and the AA group doesn't decide. The criminal justice system and treatment programs may decide if their clients go to AA meetings, but attendance at AA meetings does not necessarily mean one is an AA member. The decision about AA membership is left up to the individual and no one else.

The American writer Edwin Markham wrote, "He drew a circle that shut me out--Heretic, rebel, a thing to flout. But love and I had the wit to win: We drew a circle that took him in!" Frankly, I'd rather let a few drug addicts, mentally ill folks, and anyone else hang around AA until they figure out if they belong here, than exclude alcoholics who don't quite understand how to introduce themselves at AA meetings. I think that badgering these people is harmful to the spirit of our Fellowship.

I sometimes hear AA members suggest that those who identify themselves as drug addicts or anything else in addition to alcoholic are trying to be "different" or "special." While that may be true of some of them, I believe that most introduce themselves that way to give additional identification to newcomers who may have difficulty looking for the similarities rather than the differences among us.

Actually, I find it more annoying when people introduce themselves as real alcoholics, or recovered alcoholics, or grateful alcoholics, or as real, recovered, grateful, sober, happy, tiptoe-through-the-tulips alcoholics. I hear a lot more of that in AA than introductions as addicts, gamblers, overeaters, and so forth. Being grateful or sober are not requirements for membership in AA, though they are key to our recovery. But this isn't Real Alcoholics Anonymous, or Recovered Alcoholics Anonymous, or Grateful Alcoholics Anonymous, or even Sober Alcoholics Anonymous--and it's certainly not Alcoholics and Addicts Anonymous. It's Alcoholics Anonymous, without any other modifiers. That's why I just introduce myself as an alcoholic at AA meetings.

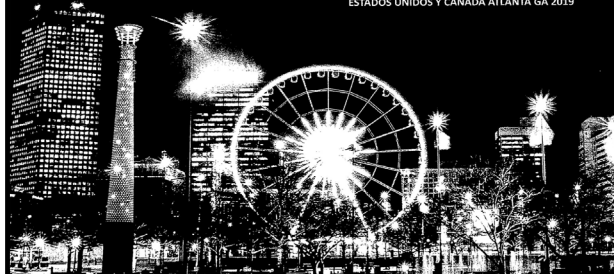

Over the years, I've encouraged the men I sponsor to figure out how to introduce themselves at AA meetings, and none of them introduced himself as anything other than alcoholic for very long. It probably helps that, as their alcoholic, drug-addicted, addled sponsor, I only introduce myself as an alcoholic, despite the myriad of other complications in my life at any given time.

Alcoholics are entitled to have as many other problems as they wish; as long as one of them is alcoholism, they are welcome to become AA members. Newcomers eventually realize that they don't get extra points for introducing themselves as anything other than an alcoholic in AA, and that the simple statement: "I am an alcoholic" contributes a great deal to our worldwide unity and primary purpose.

For a guy who lived his whole life in separate, secret "compartments," it was no wonder I resorted to depending on alcohol. If secrets make us sick—and they do—I had two big ones.

With my family and friends, I was the good kid who was rather spiritual at a young age and who was going to be a priest (like it or not) but I wouldn't dare mention my "gay secret." When I crossed the river into New York City to be with my gay tribe, I wouldn't dare mention my "Catholic secret." It was only in a meeting of alcoholics that the walls of my compartments came crumbling down and I felt a freedom that had eluded me for most of my life.

There have been times since then when, due to my life's circumstances, I wanted to put the walls back up. But I knew that to do that would surely lead me to a drink. By continuing to go to meetings and staying in the center of the program, not only do I resist putting the walls back up, but I realize that I don't need them anymore.

Concept Three

As a traditional means of creating and maintaining a clearly defined working relation between the groups, the Conference, the A.A. General Service Board and its several service corporations, staffs, committees and executives, and of thus insuring their effective leadership, it is here suggested that we endow each of these elements of world service with a traditional "Right of Decision."
